By posting your video podcast or video blog in the iTunes store you will be making it available to millions of potential viewers. With video podcast, you can easily post your videos on iTunes and reach a huge audience. There are many video sharing sites that publish the video directly to the iTunes Store. The most way is to upload your video to a site like blip.tv blip.tv, which will submit automatically all of your work to iTunes. If you want to do it yourself, you must first create a video blog. This is the page you can use to publish your video online. Then create an account feedburner syndicate for your video blog. Feedburner adds a feature to the video blog that automatically alerts subscribers when they post new content. Once you've set up your FeedBurner account, you're ready to submit your video blog to iTunes. In the podcast section of the iTunes store, select Send Podcast, which will guide you through the process of playing the videos listed in the iTunes store. Once your videos appear in the iTunes Store, anyone interested can subscribe and automatically download new videos every time they publish them. If you've worked hard to create original content and want to sell it through iTunes, you're in luck. iTunes accepts original, all-night movies and documentaries originally released in theaters or directly in the video. They also accept higher quality short films. Basically, if it looked good in a theater, it'd be lost. There are movies that Apple won't take away. The iTunes Store does not accept adult content, instruction videos, user-generated content (think YouTube) or other types of videos that are not considered movies or documentaries. In addition, films must be submitted in the language of the area where you distribute or add subtitles from that area. Once you've created a concert video, you can send it to the Music section of the iTunes store. To get yours there, you'll need to fill out apple's music app. So there's this. Send or sell your videos in iTunes. For best results, it's a good idea to review content totalizers, who take most of the guesswork out of the process. These aggregators are experienced experts in content services to iTunes and know what to do and how to do it. In exchange for the price, they can accurately format and deliver the content to Apple, exactly according to Apple's specifications. Most of the independent films on iTunes were delivered by an Apple aggregator partner. If you decide to go it alone, you'll need to fill out the iTunes Movies app. Thank you for let us know! tell me why! Copyright © 2020 InfoSpace Holdings, LLC, the System1 Company If you're finally ready to mix things up and listen to something next to the – admittedly glorious – Moana soundtrack in an endless loop, you'll have to turn your attention to the Franco-Canadian animated film Leap!. The film was released as Ballerina in the original international series, but leap! trailer reveals why the new title is a perfect fit. Hold On the Extreme Music provides the soundtrack to America's first look at this sweet story of two orphans chasing their dreams in 1880s France, and once you hear the you are immediately obsessed. The two characters focused on the story of Félicie and Victor, who escape from the orphanage and headed to Paris. Félicie, once there, assumes a new identity to join a ballet company, while Victor helped build the Eiffel Tower. Unlike other girls in the company, Félicie has no formal training and must rely on her natural skills - as well as the help of a talented cleaning woman with a secret past - to earn her place in the upcoming performance of The Nutcracker. In short, it sounds adorable and inspiring, much like the uplifting Wait. The pop anthem is a beautiful reminder that good things come to those who don't give up. I can't think of a more appropriate song for a character with resistance to Félicie. Hold On is far from the only song you will be hitting replays when it comes to Leap! soundtrack has been released. The film also features original music by Demi Lovato, Sia and Carly Rae Jepsen. As the story ballet theme, you can expect new music to be a complete inspiration fuel throughout the board. Aside from being sure to be a wonderful soundtrack, Leap! Also features an incredible sound cast. Elle Fanning stars as Félicie, Nat Wolf sounds Victor, Jepsen is on board as the cleaning lady, Odette, and Dance Moms favorite Maddie Ziegler sounds Félicie's biggest rival. You're already buying the tickets, aren't you? Jump! we've made a splash internationally, and now the movie seems to be ready to take the U.S. by storm as well. This is really unlike most animated features – Félicie and Victor are far from royalty and set out to succeed in their lives with passions little more than determination and raw talent. Add the stunning setting and you'll have the recipe for a hit animated movie nary with a talking animal in the sky. You can catch Leap! in theaters on April 21. Even without the gut-busting soul-stomping vocalization of USA Queen Beyoncé, the first trailer for everything, everything feels like an emotional roller coaster ride. The film (and corresponding trailer) adapted from Nicola Yoon's young adult novel about an 18-year-old quarantined at her home is tied to a few tears. Meanwhile, the song in the trailer titled Runnin' (Lose It All) - which is a collaboration with English producer Naughty Boy for Mother Goddess (Bey) and Arrow Benjamin - does it darndest add to the emotional value. The song of All, Every trailer will feel like you have to leave office work now and go to the beach because life is so short. Honestly this trailer can be considered NSFW for this reason, because this atmosphere definitely helps the fast-paced background song. The film follows Maddy (Hunger Games' Amandla Stenberg), a teen who spent her entire childhood in her home due to mysterious immunodeficiency. As a child, only his mother, an overprotecting doctor and a nurse were his only escorts. You The new boy next door knocks on the door, has a bundt cake in his hand, and that's love at first sight. In Romeo and Juliet-like twist, Maddy's mother is not a fan of her daughter's neighbor boyf, Olly. But despite Mama's reservations, love-soaked teens make it to Runnin', runnin', runnin', so Maddy can experience, as she says, everything, everything, or at least a perfect day before she (probably) dies. Naughty Boy's power ballad describes the subjects, ignoring personal hangups, and they follow each other despite all this. The lyrics of these four lonely walls have changed the way I feel and Ain't runnin' myself anymore almost seems like I'm specifically for this movie. But in fact they weren't, the song actually was released in September 2015. Even the music video, which features a couple of runs in a row, while underwater feels similar to the ocean-heavy atmosphere of the All, All trailer. This song didn't at its full potential until this moment. The combination of song and trailer is not a great job reminding us how short life can be, and yet how long you feel without adventure or love. They also serve as a reminder that it is true that yourself is the only way to make love. There's a lot of feeling in a two minute period brought us this trailer/trailer song combo. Get ready to reach the final resting place of all your feelings when everything, every premiere, is on May 19! If this trailer brought a tear to your eyes, chances are you'll cry buckets of salty tears during the film. It's almost like... the ocean? It's fitting, isn't it? Not?
